DEPARTMENT INFORMATION

Learning Goals: A Statement of Principles

The Program Committee for the Program in Criminal Justice at Rutgers University in New Brunswick has adopted a series of learning goals for students who complete the major. These goals represent the consensus of the faculty regarding the concepts a student should grasp and the skills a student should acquire in the course of completing the major. These goals guide the choices faculty make about the structure of the curriculum and the requirements for our majors. Moreover, they guide faculty and instructors preparing course material and teaching courses.

The Program in Criminal Justice will provide students with a rich understanding of crime and criminal justice in the United States and abroad through an interdisciplinary approach that blends a strong liberal arts educational experience with pre-professional instruction in the field of criminal justice. Graduates of the program will be well-informed citizens on the topic of crime and justice, and qualified for graduate study or for employment as practitioners in a variety of legal, policymaking, and law enforcement fields.

Criminal justice majors graduating from a research university should be able to use critical thinking, factual inquiry, and the scientific approach to solve problems related to individual and group behavior. In addition, students should have an understanding of the legal, political and policymaking processes that affect criminal justice systems in the United States and elsewhere in the world. Finally, students should be familiar with the institutional structures and latest developments in the field in order to engage in meaningful debate about current public policy issues.

Learning Goals for Criminal Justice Majors

1. Competence:

- a.) Theory. Students who complete the major in criminal justice should understand and be able to articulate, both orally and in writing, the core theoretical concepts that form the foundation of analysis and research in criminology and criminal justice today. Core concepts are derived from explanations of crime from a variety of perspectives, including biogenic, psychological, and sociological approaches. There are myriad theories of crime that are informed by these perspectives, including, classical, control, critical, ecology, labeling, learning, strain, and trait-based approaches. Theoretical literacy should extend to multicultural and international understanding.
 - b.) Institutions. Students who complete the major in criminal justice should understand the special role of three types of institutions: Police, Corrections, and Courts. In addition, students should know how institutional forms vary across jurisdictions and how these institutions interact with and influence each other.
 - c.) Research Methods. Students who complete the criminal justice major should be familiar with the tools, techniques, and data sources necessary for empirical analysis. Students should understand the various ways that empirical analysis is used in the scientific approach: for description, for developing, and for testing theories. They should be able to analyze data using computer applications and should be familiar with basic statistical techniques and regression analysis. They should be able to read and assess research from a wide range of sources, including general interest, academic, and government publications.
2. Critical Thinking: Upon completion of the major students should be able to apply their understanding of core concepts and quantitative tools to analyze and research real world problems, and evaluate alternative policy proposals on a range of criminal justice issues, from micro-level analyses relevant to particular cases to management concerns to macro-level analyses of legislative and other broad-scale policies. Accomplishment of this goal will require that students can apply their literacy and numeracy skills to different institutional structures, within the U.S. and across countries.
 3. Scholarship: Qualified majors should have an opportunity through such avenues as advanced coursework, internships, and faculty interactions to conduct independent research on matters of central relevance to the field of criminal justice.

Course Specific Learning Goals

The following are the course specific learning goals for Intro to Criminal Justice, adapted from the Permanent Core Curriculum Learning Goals. Upon completion of this course students will be expected to:

1. Identify and critically assess ethical issues in social science and history.
2. Apply concepts about human and social behavior to particular questions or situations.

Department Assessment

The course specific learning goals will be assessed at two points during the semester where students will be required to answer questions that articulate with each of the course specific learning goals. Learning goals will be assessed in one of the midterm examinations and during the final examination.

CLASS INFORMATION

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course covers the societal responses to people and organizations that violate criminal codes; the police, courts, juries, prosecutors, defense and correctional agencies; the standards and methods used to respond to crime and criminal offenders; and the social pressures that enhance or impair the improvement of criminal laws.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

At the completion of this course, students are responsible for:

- 1) An increased knowledge of the criminal justice system
- 2) An increased understanding of the current initiatives in the criminal justice system, and the additional topics that are covered separate from the book.

REQUIRED READINGS- There is only one book and this book is not optional

Introduction to Criminal Justice, 7th edition. Bohm, Robert M. & Haley, Keith N. 2011. ISBN: 978-0078111532

The book is available at the campus bookstore in New Brunswick. Additionally, it can be purchased on the bookstore website, NJ Books, AMAZON and through the publisher's website.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

1) Attendance & Participation

Participation and attendance are required and mandatory for all classes, as they accrue toward your grade. Roll will be taken during each class. You are expected to have the material read for the respective class. Failing to provide sufficient answers to posed questions will result in a score of zero for that day's participation. Students are expected to fully participate in the lectures and will be called on regularly. No amendments will be made to grades after the class is complete. Do not ask for extra credit beyond what, if any, I designate. Do not ask for changes in grade once the semester is over.

Students are expected to attend all classes; if you expect to miss one class please use the University absence reporting website <https://sims.rutgers.edu/ssra/> to indicate the date and reason for your absence. An email will automatically be sent to me. As always, faculty – either individually or as a department – determine their own attendance policies and exam make-up policies. The Rutgers absence reporting system DOES NOT EXCUSE YOUR ABSENCE. Department policy, as well as my policy, is that students are not excused from class for any reason other than extreme exceptions. There are 5 random quizzes that can happen at any point during the semester, if you miss class and a random quiz, there is no make-up and you receive a zero for that grade. There is no exam make-up, since you know the dates well in advance.

University attendance policy is found at:

<http://sasundergrad.rutgers.edu/academics/courses/registration-and-course-policies/attendance-and-cancellation-of-class>

2) Reading Material

Readings are assigned for every Tuesday and Thursday class. If participation and feedback on readings suffers, pop quizzes will be given sporadically, in addition to the 5 random quizzes. Supplemental articles, links or assignments may be posted on sakai for specific class sessions.

3) Exams

There will be two exams for this class. Exams will be non-cumulative and multiple choice. Excuses and make-up sessions will not be allowed. There will be no exam review and I will not provide power point slides to students. Exams comprise 75% of your grade.

4) 5 Random Quizzes

There are 5 random quizzes that can happen at any point during the semester, they are not scheduled and are completely random. If you miss class when a random quiz occurred, there is no make-up and you receive a zero for that grade. Each quiz is worth 5%, totaling 25% of your grade. Format can range from multiple choice to essay.

5) Extra Credit

It is likely that I will allow for one or two online extra credit assignments through the semester, when I have to attend conferences. They will take place through sakai and will be conducted as an online assignment. Please make yourself familiar with sakai, if you are not already. This is not mandatory and is for extra credit.
