Course Overview: Why do some communities have so much more crime than others? What social conditions make it so much more likely for crime and violence to flourish in some neighborhoods while other are relatively free from these problems? How do race, class, and gender inequality play into these differences in crime? And, how do the police and prisons connect with communities to help or hinder the crime problems faced by local areas? In this course, we will address these and other questions to learn about the ways in which crime and violence are connected with various aspects of community context. We will discuss both longstanding theoretical approaches and current research about what causes crime within local communities, what consequences crime and violence have for neighborhoods, and how policing and imprisonment influence crime, violence, and the people who live in areas where these are everyday problems.

Required Texts

All other readings noted on the syllabus are available on the sakai class webpage.

Requirements

1. A written letter of introduction is required of each member of the class. These will provide a way for you to get to know your classmates. The letter is due in class on Monday January 23. The letters will be read to one another in class on that day. This assignment is worth 2% of your course grade.

2. Each student will complete a written review and a presentation of a recent empirical article (that is not assigned for class) on an issue related to communities and crime. You will provide me with your preferences for the topic of this article and I will assign you to topics based upon these requests. The due date for the paper and presentation correspond with the date for the topic as listed below on the course outline and on the article preference sheet that I will pass out. A description of the required content of the paper and presentation will be passed out early in the semester. The article review and presentation count for 10% of your course grade.
3. A written essay providing a critical evaluation and reaction to the book Between Good and Ghetto is due in class on the first day that this book is discussed. A description of the required content of this paper will be passed out early in the semester. This assignment is worth 15% of your course grade.

4. Students are required to conduct a research project in which they compare two or more communities in relation to an issue covered in the class. You will then make a presentation to the class reporting on your research question, hypotheses, and findings. Finally, you will write a paper summarizing all of your work. You may work alone or in groups of 2-3 students, but I strongly suggest that you work in a group. A description of the requirements for this project will be passed out early in the semester along with a set of general topics for the project. Students will indicate their preferences for project topics and whether they would like to work in a group. I will assign you to a topic and group based upon these preferences. Note that some in-class planning time will be provided. This assignment is worth 20% of your course grade.

5. One in-class midterm examination will be given during the semester as scheduled on the course outline below. This exam is worth 20% of your course grade.

6. A non-cumulative final examination will be given during the regularly scheduled final examination time. The time of this exam is also noted below on the course outline. This final exam is worth 20% of your course grade.

7. Attendance and active participation is an essential part of this course. This is a small discussion-based class and the success of the course depends upon the active participation of all class members. Attendance and participation are worth 13% of your course grade. If you must miss class, you are responsible for getting notes from someone else in the class and for finding out about any announcements made during class.

Note
No make-up exams or late assignments will be permitted unless you contact me PRIOR TO THE EXAM OR THE DUE DATE.

Academic Misconduct
Academic honesty is a subject that I take very seriously. I encourage all students to familiarize themselves with the Rutgers University policies and procedures on academic honesty, available at http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/integrity.shtml. All violations of academic integrity, for example, cheating in examinations or plagiarizing others' work for your written assignments, will be referred to the appropriate authorities and sanctioned accordingly.

Students With Disabilities
In accordance with University policy, if you have a documented disability and require accommodations to obtain equal access in this course, please contact me at the beginning of the semester. Students with disabilities must be registered with Office of Student Disability Services and must provide verification of their eligibility for such accommodations.
